Dear Sir

I support water programs that will restore streams and fish migration.

One, in our opinion, of the most short sighted plans has been the growing of crops NOT SUITED to the valleys of California. Yes, they grow, but the water required results in less water for a balanced use in our state.

All thers greedy huge farms do is make selected money for a select group. If you want to grow a crop that is NOT suitable to a balance of water rights GO AWAY! Go to a state where it is natural to grow this crop.

California will have less people, less money, a quieter life and less urban sprawl.

We need to restore our habitat, bank our streams and rivers, build NO MORE DAMS, and keep a check on the quality of our water and our lives.

Mr & Mrs Del Camomile
