

The Boalt Hall Environmental Law Society cordially invites you to...

transforming our communities:
an inclusive approach to environmental justice

JOIN US on Friday, March 11, 2005 at the Boalt Hall School of Law on the UC Berkeley campus in a forum addressing issues ranging from environmental policy to grass roots, community-based struggles against industrial pollution. The day-long forum will also serve as a brainstorming session for effective strategies and creative new directions for the movement's success.

MCLE Credit Available!

Christopher Edley, Jr., Dean of Boalt Hall will give opening remarks. Learn from prominent and accomplished community leaders representing organizations such as The Center on Race Poverty and the Environment, Ma'at Youth Academy, Earthjustice, Urban Ecology, Women's Found. of California, Children's Env'tl. Health Network, Greenaction, CA State Assembly, West Harlem Env'tl. Action, and others....

REGISTER NOW at ej2005.boalt.org

HEAR keynote speaker Margie Eugene-Richard, a grass roots environmental justice organizer and the 2004 Goldman Environmental Prize winner, explain how she engaged in a struggle against a Shell chemical plant in her community in Norco, Louisiana.

REGISTER for free now at ej2005.boalt.org and also explore our full schedule of events and panelists.

Eugene-Richard

co-sponsored by african-american law & policy report • asian pacific american law students association avodah jewish service corps • berkeley la raza law journal • boalt hall school of law • center for social justice coalition for diversity • ecology law quarterly • environmental law society • environmental law program la raza law students association • national lawyers guild • native american law students association south asian law students association • uc berkeley graduate assembly • youth and education law society

ford foundation • boalt hall committee for human rights

FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 2005
9 AM - 5 PM

If you would like to be removed from the mailing list, please email els@boalt.org, and type REMOVE in the subject line.